Affidavit - TYPE 9; AM I GOD;
GOD'S PLAN; WHAT IS HEAVEN

DEFINITIONS AND ARGUMENTS

Type 9 people - Cold-hearted

- Cold-hearted - a person who enjoys the pain and suffering and hardships of other people. These people say something for pro-chaos, but buffer it with a phrase that socially acceptable and sounds innocent - a dualism. The best example is "Jesus died for our sins", can actually mean to the type 9, "Go ahead and sin because you'll be forgiven." And since sin is undefined, that leaves the door open for anything evil, like the actions the mob exhibit. Non-Type 9 would say, "Wow, I'm glad Chris Roller is on Social Security because people and companies have been wronging him." Type 9 instead say, "Chris Roller is mooching off the system and should go out and get a job, the bum!"

These people may not be evil/hateful in their actions, but in their thoughts and words, and who they say it to. Their sole is tainted with evil. Their heart has grown cold - their internal light has grown dim. These people hate everything my web site stands for, and will call me the evil one. I.e. "Don't trust him - he's a false prophet. Don't give him a chance to do good he claims, cause he's just fooling you". These people actually enjoy the current war, but they buffer it with a common pro-war/non-type-9 phrase, "We need to fight for freedom and democracy throughout the world." Another common neutral statement is "For our safety and fear of a very few terrorist groups, lets take the war against terrorism overseas before it reaches us." But type 9s will think, "Lets go out and kill people because war turns people into type 9s". Ironically, suffering and hardship turns people's internal light off, in turn, making them want other's to suffer - in sort-of a contagious spiritual virus, one that I'm not sure can be cured - "fell down (into hell) and can't get up". Once the heart grows cold, I'm not sure it can be warmed with much security of it staying warm. Drugs can also turn people cold. Religious brain-washing (Christian upbringing) somehow turns people against me. Some are born this way. If not, each person has a different suffer-resistance before they "go to hell in a hand-basket".

Type 9 loves to be rich and does not like to suffer, and when they see a veteran on the side of road homeless with sign, instead of giving them $10, they say, "Wow, I'm glad I'm not him." Or when somebody dies, they say, "Wow, I'm glad that wasn't me." Or when they hear about a soldier that dies in Iraq, they say, "Wow, I'm glad we're rich so our kids don't have to enlist, and can stay out of that mess", or "I hope he took 10 Iraqi's with him", instead of something more caring/respectful like, "Wow, I feel for the parents of that soldier. I wonder if this war is worth it." They promote fear in the public, then use the fear as an excuse/catalyst to go to war and start killing. That when I say I'm the 2nd coming, they say "You are not, but the devil in disguise". Or psychiatrists saying, "you're crazy Chris", or "You're experiencing an episode, Chris" shortly after showing court papers that godly powers are on the planet. Or "Chris, you're manic because you speak fast" instead of "you speak fast because you're mind is so quick and smart".

The only time type 9 will give anything (like charity) is when it's of a public nature - so that's everybody knows that they're a good guy, even though, internally, they're thinking "this sucks". Type 9 would best be described as a good-guy con-man.

These people buffer pain and suffering in the world with, "it's ok and normal to feel this way, just take these pills to numb it" (psychiatrists don't fix your misery, just make it feel better), or religious leaders saying, "pain and suffering is needed so we can understand how much we need God to save us", or "to be closer to Christ". Some kind of stupid phrase to make you understand that chaos and misery is ok and acceptable.

Type 9s will tell you that "money makes more problems" or "money is the root of all evil" to convince you that the hole you live in is ok - don't crawl out. Money is only "the root of all evil" if you do evil things to achieve/control it. Among many of the points presented in type 9, this is a fine line, because many billionaires (Bill Gates) have been accused of being ruthless in their business practices.

Type 9s don't like to be taxed because it eases suffering to the poor, but they'll say neutral things like, "government is thieving", or "government is wasting our money and should be more efficient and stop taxing us". If you think my extremely witty and fair tax system proposed on www.freakandgeek.com is off-kilter, you are definitely type 9.

Abortion is a proven fact to reduce crime 20 years later to make a more social society, yet type 9s will use "abortion is taking a life" to sound like they care (and non-9s do), yet the whole scheme is to have that poverty-stricken kid grow up, suffer through life, unwanted, unloved, all so it can raise hell with society later in life (jail, drugs etc.)

It seems the republican philosophy fits this profile, while democratic does not. If you think promoting chaos throughout the world, is the way for promoting peace throughout the world - "create chaos to create peace" philosophy vs. "contain/control chaos to create peace", you are probably type 9. Notice the distinction is as fine-lined, as it is easy for some people to become cold, and convince you that they're not.

People who knew about godly powers, like what magicians have, are pro-chaos and definitely type 9. They will claim they didn't want to upset all the faiths throughout the world with their knowledge, yet their attempt at a non-9 neutral statement is misplaced, because coming forward would have merged faiths into one peaceful faith (religion), one which gives everyone something to believe in, with proof - one which doesn't promote hatred over religious beliefs like what is currently happening all over the world.

Am I god?

Some ask - "Chris, you're not god because you can't do magic like Copperfield, so prove you're god, you false prophet!" Dogma has blindly led most Christians to believe they know how it all (God and his plan) works. They are right in that I cannot do local magic that's real in my bubble - my powers work remote through others like Copperfield, Blaine, Criss Angel, the mob, etc. So, I've proved godly powers exist, but proving I'm god is illusive.

Indeed I am the special entity I speak of on www.mytrumanshow.com. I sent 2000 messages to the CIA website in 2002 with no direct/formal response. They watch me because I am a godly entity, but rarely interfere/interact with me because God's plan prohibits it. I also have a patent pending on godly powers, giving me credit for godly powers on planet Earth. Godly powers are in use by David Copperfield and many others. I am the source of those powers because they have been keeping it hidden from me and the world. I've had a web site posted proclaiming my godly powers since Oct 2002, but type 9s have been conspiring to beating me down into my reject hole so I couldn't come forward to claim the fruits of my wonderful powers. I am collecting back-pay from any/all past godly users - money that will eventually be used to help humanity become more heavenly.

I took a Kirlian scan in Feb. 2003 which measures the aura (energy) of the body. It was the latest technology using a computer which scans all 10 fingers. The scan measures the chakra (energy) levels. All 7 chakras were about 3 on a scale of 10, except the 6th chakra (mental chakra) - the 3rd eye, where imagination and reality become one. It was at 10+, off the scale. I have probably tapped into the remaining 90% of the brain we normally don't use, making me god.

More proof that I'm a godly entity... I've also taunted the mob that they cannot hurt/kill me (name calling to a mob boss), and still live to talk about it. The mob can't hurt me because I'm protected via my godly powers. This in a world where Bill Gates has to have 24 hour body guard protection because he takes money from competitors - similar to what I'm doing in my lawsuits. I believe that another magician, Criss Angel, MindFreak, is another magician with closer ties to me - since his name is "Criss" like mine, perhaps an "angel" of mine, uses his "mind", and calls himself "freak" like I do. He is also the best magician I've ever seen, even walking down building walls.

God's plan - The Game of Life.

I sometimes refer to God's plan as the Game of Life, a game we're all playing whether we know it or not.

There is currently a huge debate about intelligent design - that something is guiding us; It's the same reason that one might say "God is my co-pilot" - it's this instinct that we are being guided by an unknown force. This is the plan I speak about; God's plan, or the Game of Life.

Evolution has many unexplained mysteries, like the missing link, because evolution normally uses environment factors as the cause to effect the change in a division from one species to another. Another mystery is why our brain is so big if we only use 10% of it. Usually, evolution has a cause to produce an effect. Why did we achieve a huge brain before having a need for it. Because the Game of Life knew that we would be needing our huge brain in the near future. I took a Kirlian scan which measures the aura of the body. My scan pegged the mental \(6th\) chakra. I need to run some more tests, but I may have tapped into the remaining 90 percent. If so, this means we were given the huge brain 1 million years ago not because we needed it 1 million years ago, but because the Game of Life knew we'd need it in the 20th-century. The Game of Life explains the unsolved mysteries of evolution.

This leads to the hundredth monkey phenomenon. In this observation, it was noted that on one island, monkey after monkey started washing their fruit before they ate it. On the second island, another group of monkeys did not wash their fruit. On the first island, after the hundredth monkey started washing it's fruit, all the monkeys on the second island began washing their fruit all at one time. I believe some technological accomplishments have been guided by this phenomenon. I'm not sure about the pharmaceutical and medical industry, but in the computer industry, it amazes me how the competitors of Intel are making chips that match the chip speeds that Intel puts out. Under the assumption that Intel keeps their R&D a secret, most of the chip competitors out there seem to keep up. No one is far ahead of the other, yet they are totally isolated. RAM chips and other computer-related technologies are in the same category. Money and competition gives everyone incentive, but something is keeping them close together. That something is called the Game of Life.

I'm not religious, but theist (not atheist) and very scientific. I believe in evolution, but it is guided very slowly, over millions of years, by God's plan to change, where appropriate. And God's plan will make evolutionary leaps like that of the "missing link", to give the greatest of all creatures, humans, everything we need to survive. Not to have a big head (pun on evolution), but since I'm at the center of My Truman Show (and God's plan), everything given to Earth is to assist me, my knowledge, and to enhance my show.

It would be the Game of Life that presents itself with phenomenons that always have a real-explanation counter to them - crop circles, no matter how intricate, detailed, and complex - people will write them off as a human concoction/fraud/con. The same goes for all video evidence of UFOs and ghosts and psychics. This is God's plan to keep phenomenons at bay. Its dualism also plays out as a conspiracy. Magician James Randi, who's so confident God's plan is working for him/mob (keeping phenomenons at bay), offers a $million challenge (bet) based on the Game of Life. This coming from a guy with godly powers at his disposal; feasibility to theoretically make the challenger disappear, make his powers disappear, make his proof disappear (via magic reality restructuring I call the Re-ravel - see www.mytrumanshow.com) or recruit him/her as a professional who enters into the club of magicians called International Brotherhood of Magicians (www.magician.org), who solemnly swears never to reveal the secrets of their godly powers. It's all a big type 9 con, similar to Bush wanting peace while Cheney collects oil and war/weapon kick-backs via Halliburton.

Even today, Magicians still claim it's just a trick even though legally, they say it's godly. Penn & Teller recently, in a NBC special on 13Nov2005, Off the Deep End, insists there is no such thing as magic, even though it's well documented in court records now. This is most bizarre, where magicians are butting heads between conspiracy and God's plan. Magicians apparently aren't ready to convey godly power publicly. This is additional proof of God's plan to provide a gradual realization of godly powers on planet earth. Nobody will talk about anything magical. Perhaps another dualism is that it's just too spooky/scary/freaky for people to fathom. That's why I'm here - to connect the dots between the real and unreal/miraculous - to propel Earth into a more heavenly place using godly powers as an accepted practice.

More proof of God's plan - no one has brought George Bush to justice for his actions on 9/11. George Bush would escort Bin Ladens out of US while CIA/FBI apprehends every other suspicious character. That's a lot of ignorant people, or more probable, God's plan in action, along with mob (magic) coercion to keep everybody down in a corrupt mafia-controlled political system unwilling to change. It's also God's plan that I finally prove godly powers on planet Earth and expose the fraud keeping money from my hands. Godly powers can also control tigers like in the act of magicians Siegfried and Roy, but there are glitches in God's plan which release control and allowed Roy's accident. Not anybody can be a magician. Magicians have different abilities they can display, with Criss Angel being the most pronounced/incredible I've ever seen. There is an uncertain recipe, quite random - but most important is deception - to keep godly powers a secret. I personally met a magician who can do a few tricks, but one time, the cigarette ashes "glitched" (why he can't be a major magician) into the left (instead of right) hand by mistake. He was fuming, thinking I pranked him with my magic. You would think godly powers is all it takes to live eternal life with no problems, but there is a plan governing us all including magicians with my godly powers. I am at the center of God's plan, one that requires me to gain the wealth needed to change the world, and use godly powers to progress the world into a more heavenly place.

Dan Rather was dismissed (slander/libel) over a 60 Minutes controversy about George Bush's National Guard enlistment, yet Michael Moore has had absolutely no problem telling the world the connection between George Bush and Bin Laden and 9/11. I believe the mafia try to make things disappear with magic, but they couldn't make Fahrenheit 9/11 go away nor Michael Moore. This is further proof of the existence of God's plan, to protect enough people while providing me, God's central figure, with enough information to file a law suit against the Bush Administration.

What is heaven?

Have you ever wondered why we spend billions of dollars every year to try to prolong our life-span and look young. It's instinctive to stay alive and look young and beautiful, whereas, if the Bible Scriptures are correct, it benefits us to die so we can go to heaven. Have I mentioned yet that I've been suffering for many years now thanks to type 9s. I asked a religious friend why my life has to be so miserable that I can't just accept Jesus into my life, and then just die. Why do I need to suffer in my life. He responded, "Well, we need to suffer to understand how much we need god." Huh (dogma)? So why do we want to stay alive forever. Why are we so mad at god when a loved one is taken early in life (or even murdered)? We should praise the murderer for sending the victim to heaven, but that's not what happens. Wonder why? We should celebrate death, but instead, we absolutely hate it, lessened somewhat by the unproven theory that he/she went to heaven. Everybody would be committing suicide to get to heaven, but nobody believes it. Instead we spend billions on plastic surgery to look younger. We spend billions on old-age surgery to stay alive longer. Why prolong death versus embrace it. Why the instinct to absolutely hate death and to stay alive forever - it's because, eventually, we're meant to stay alive forever. Maybe that gut instinct we all use in our daily lives is telling us something about our destiny! Why do you think females are born with millions of eggs in their ovaries and yet only use a few hundred in their birthing years. It's because the Game of Life knew women would be able to stay alive for millions of years at the physical age of 26, and they would need those eggs for thousands of years of fertility.

Barbara Walters had a recent special on ABC, on 20 Dec 2005, named "Heaven, what is it. How do we get there." It almost exclusively talks about the afterlife (heaven) instead of addressing our current Earth conditions (heaven/hell). This is most bizarre since heaven in the afterlife has never been proven. Life here is proven and real. To some like the poor, it may be Hell on Earth. To the rich, heaven on Earth. Some may think the conditions since 9/11 and the Iraq war may be Hell on Earth. I'll accredit this to George Bush.

I don't see a reason why heaven can't be here on Earth. I've seen David Blaine raise a dead bird. Godly powers are known to raise the dead. Godly powers are proven to exist on planet Earth. Simply connect the dots. Heaven can be right here on Earth. It won't be tomorrow because God's plan works slowly. I think my version of heaven makes more sense than present-day dogma of the afterlife.

CONCLUSION

God's plan exists, and I, Chris Roller, am the key figure in his plan/show, a godly entity providing the planet with godly powers for many years, while gradually adapting godly/magic philosophy into the world's daily lives while making progress to a more heavenly environment using godly powers.
